Romance in Educational Foundation Service

Early in the work of the Educational Foundation, assistance was given to a young woman who because of illness was obliged to leave college before graduation. At about the same time, aid was rendered to a young man who afterwards took up research work in the field of medicine. In course of time these two met and married. The young man, now a full fledged physician, has found an important and responsible place at Dartmouth College. The young woman, whose borrowings amounted to several hundred dollars, has paid her account in full and her husband recently closed his account and acknowledges the service of the Knights Templars as follows:

"It is our earnest hope that your good work may continue with ever increasing usefulness and therefore with ever increasing satisfaction to all who have made possible this splendid service of assisting in the fulfillment of the ambition and ideals of Youth. In so doing, I believe you are making a very effective contribution to both individual happiness and social progress."
